

Dear Manager,

This letter has been written by a few students attending Oakwood Collegiate Institute and we are writing this letter because it has come to our attention that there is a sign in your restaurant which we find to be of concern to us. Your sign stating "No loitering, no game playing, and no outside food, to all Oakwood students" singles Oakwood students out of all the other customers who go to your restaurant to enjoy your services. It seems to be discriminatory and unjust to write this sign, directing it at Oakwood students, when there are multiple other customers coming into your store from other schools and workplaces. It worries us that this sign may give other people in the neighborhood the impression that Oakwood is a school attended by a bunch of rowdy students who do not know how to act considerately in public situations.

We have taken it upon ourselves to do a little bit of research, and we have noticed on your website that your company states that: "Thanks to a culture that is open, respectful, compassionate, performance driven and socially responsible the Pizza Pizza family continues to grow, satisfying more and more Canadians everyday". But in fact, having that sign posted in your store contradicts that statement.

We understand the reasons behind having your sign up but we would greatly appreciate it if you would consider changing the wording of the sign to something along the lines of "Please no loitering, game playing or outside food inside the store, to all customers."

Sincerely,

Oakwood students
